The final paragraph in the second column should read as follows:

The current military strength of AMISOM in Mogadishu stands at about 5,200 troops, or 65 per cent of the full mandated force of 8,000 soldiers. Burundi and Uganda have each deployed three battalions, and both countries have also offered to provide an additional — or fourth — battalion. These increases, together with the offer of Djibouti to contribute a special forces unit of 400, will bring AMISOM very close to its full mandated strength.
